KANHA NATIONAL PARK, MADHYA PRADESH One of the largest and most scenic wildlife sanctuaries in India, Kanha National Park is an ideal habitat for both tigers and their prey species. Kanha's lush sal and bamboo forests are interspersed with vast meadows known as maidans. These meadows support a high density of herbivores, including chital, barasingha, sambar and gaur, attracting predators such as the tiger, dhole or leopard to the fringes of the clearings. Visitors are taken out by open four-wheel drive vehicles to see and photograph wildlife at dawn and in the evening. If a tiger is in the vicinity there is every possibility of being able to track the King of the Jungle on elephant back.

SEASON & CLIMATE The winter months (Late October to early March) are delightfully cool and dry. Good animal sighting and excellent for birding. The summer months (March to mid June) are hot and dry. Excellent for animal sighting. The monsoon months (Late June to mid October) are humid and wet. The national park is closed during the monsoons.
